Q: How do I retrieve data from a List? I'm working on a project that involves parsing data from a.xml file and storing it into a list. I have a few files that look like this: a 1 Engineering Math b 10 Math Geography ... And I want to store each of these skills in a list. What would be the best way to do this? I'm used to working with Python's XML parser, but I'm not too familiar with XPath. I'm open to using any method that would suit my needs. Thanks, John A: The answers on this site focus on xml, but this is a list. Regardless, you can use something like var list = doc.Root.Elements("skill").Select(x => new { x.Element("Name").Value, x.Element("Level").Value, x.Element("Degree").Value, x.Element("Favorite").Value }); Radioactivity of the beef industry in Japan. Beef is an important food resource in Japan, and Japan's beef import has increased rapidly since it became a member of the World Trade Organization in 2002. To assess the potential radiation risk of beef from Fukushima Daiichi NPP accident, we performed beta(beta)- and gamma-ray analyses of commercial beef samples. Players and Restart Agreements

Players may be able to connect to and play in the present or the future. However, certain documents may still be accessed. We ask players to be completely aware of these documents before accepting the game and to be unconditionally willing to enter into the contractual agreement that the company has on hand.

In the event of a dispute, a contractual dispute settlement mechanism is in place. Additional terms can be found on the 'Terms of Service' page when you accept this version number. If you have accepted this version number but were still unable to access the game, please contact customer service.

Introduction to the Online Game

We consider online play one of the important pillars of the FINAL FANTASY XV game. Consequently, the company has thoughtfully and meticulously designed the features of the online play.

Upon acceptance of this version number, you will be able to share the progress of your quests with other players. In addition, you will be able to join other quests of fellow adventurers while connected online. However, please be aware that others will be creating their personal progress while connected online so we ask that players refrain from deleting their own progress.

2. Server Auctions*

We have updated 'Server Auctions,' one of the important functions that enables players to get further into the thrill of sharing activities, with the added functionality of conducting auctions to sell or buy materials.

Players can auction the items they collect during quests and activities that will appear in game, such as weapons, armors, magic, and items.

RPG Sharing in Town
-- Boosting Activities*

In addition to the 'Quest Auctions' function that we offer, players can get experience and items required for boosting activities in the online world during town activities as well.

rotransmitter transporters work in concert with neurotransmitter ptors to terminate signal transduction. Impairment of transporter tion leads to psychiatric disorders (e.g. attention deficit hyperactivity rder and depression) and brain damage. No experimental models that rately present the deficits characteristic of these diseases are lable. The purpose of the proposed research is to develop and racterize a simple behavioral paradigm for assessing the regulation of smitter transporters that may be applicable for drug development. One gested target of antidepressants is DAT; but, little is known about how process is regulated in vivo. Two studies are proposed. The first phase e project requires breeding a transgenic mouse that is DAT-like; then osing these mice to chronic stress. During the second phase, transgene vity will be turned off, allowing the direct assessment of chronic ss's effects on DAT activity in the mouse striatum. With this model, a es of experiments is proposed to test the hypothesis that the scriptional regulator CREB plays a critical role in the regulation of DAT esponse to chronic stress. Transgenic mice will be exposed to chronic ss and DAT levels will be measured and correlated with levels of sphorylated CREB to determine if CREB is activated following chronic ss and whether it has a key role in regulating DAT following chronic ss.1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a device regulating the flow rate of gases through an orifice. 2. Description of Prior Art Orifices are usually calibrated or set to a certain flow rate. rnatively, if the flow rate is varied along with changes in some other able in such a way that the pressure drop across the orifice remains stant, then the flow rate will be constant. A number of prior-art devices netering flow rates through such an orifice can be found. For example, Pat. No. 1,157,516 to L. S. Mowry discloses a mechanism for varying rate at which air under pressure is introduced
