At the 2015 Comicpalooza convention in Houston, Mike Deodato Jr told me to pose for his sketchbook. He is a real class act. I have since been asked to do the same by him and a few other publishers. While at Comicpalooza, I had a conversation with Mike Deodato Jr about what influenced me on SUPER GIRLS COMICS #1. I told him about how the Woman in Red gave me a message and wanted me to tell whoever was watching to remember her. I didn't know if she wanted to say goodbye to anyone at the convention or just a wisp of energy that just wanted to come to life. He said to me that if she were around he would draw her as Lady Justice and when I told him that is what I wanted, he sent me back a sketch with a Lady Justice splash. I love the way he rendered her like that. He really does a good comic book sketch. I've asked him to draw a few other characters like Hawkwoman, Green Lantern, Nightwing, Plastic Man, Spiderman and Daredevil. I just love his style so much. I could probably do an entire issue of SUPER GIRLS just because of the attention to detail he gives to a single scene. I asked Mike Deodato Jr if he could do a Wolverine variant cover for my comic book. In doing so I see he said the color was gone, so I asked him if he could at least have that yellowish glow to his eyes and he agreed. It turned out really well. He said he had never drawn a head shot like that before. I told him that I should probably do a variant cover of mine with him too. He agreed. I asked Mike Deodato Jr to do me as a character in super girls comics. I like the way he does multiple eye expressions. I think he would do a great job on some other characters I would love to see in comics. I have posted a couple of his previous character concepts on Facebook and have had a lot of people liking them. But would be great to see Deodato Jr do them for real. I especially like how he did Captain Marvel in one of his earlier concepts.

Mike Deodato Jr Sketchbook Pdf 11

Deodato: I have drawn two comics since I started drawing the Sketchbook, and of course I would like to draw more, but I suppose it's the duty of a creator to keep thinking and dreaming up new ideas and projects. Though I do have to say, I am most excited to draw, hopefully in the near future. After all, if I can't draw, I can't draw. I can't draw a trip to the Neverending Story! But the time is ripe, and I've been wanting to be active in the comics industry for years. But it was the self-imposed withdrawal from the direct market, the consumer economy, that made it necessary. To survive in this business today, you must be able to sell directly to the consumer, through your website, your Facebook, and on your cellphone, tablet, and laptop, and through all the other devices of the new world, as they are called. I could not do this, and I am now. It feels great!

Deodato: Greetings comic fanatics! I have written a book about my comic career, published by the wonderful people at the Toon Books art print imprint. Named after the famous (and infamous) artist Wally Wood, it is a book that will be the definitive guide for all the fanatics, the students, and all the artists who want to know more about one of comics' top legends. Want to see my best lines? My favorite art? My paintings? The finest sketches? I have it all. There is no other book like it anywhere, and the price is great for this volume! And if you want to get it, go to my website (www.mikedeodato.com) and click on the link right above the book cover to order a copy from us! Also, I've been asked to sign and sketch a sketchbook or two for some lucky fan, so I've been able to offer all my existing customers a promo code they can enter into their purchase to get it for a discount! 5ec8ef588b
