Private Pilot Review and Certification Flight Preparation and Refresher Training A New FAA course of study for the Minimum Pilot Certification for Private Pilots but for all who want to prepare and refresh themselves for the future of private flying in this fast-paced world. The successful completion of a private pilot review and recertification course can provide a valuable service to the airline pilot profession with the FAA. The pilot review and recertification course is offered by the FAA and is composed of multiple sub-courses that are taken in a sequential manner. Each course is valued on its own merit with an overall estimated time of completion for all related courses. There are different opportunities for the course as well. The most common is that of completion to certify the pilot to fly day or night in the actual engine category that the pilot possesses. This can be with one or two engine type and includes all fuel types. This course specifically is required for those pilots that have obtained a valid and current air transport medical before they begin private flight training. The following information will help you in your study for this course: "Minimum Standards for Commercial Operations" by the FAA. This is a manual which contains the background information, curriculum and standards which must be followed by pilots in the United States. For more information go to: It is advised that you study this manual before becoming a qualified pilot as the information is helpful in understanding the proper subject matter. As the manual covers the subject so well, it is suggested that you only use it as a guide in your pre-course study and not for study purposes. The manual is available at most airports and air traffic control facilities, or can be obtained from the FAA website. Publications of the FAA can be found here: The FAA has many other materials related to pilot certification and general aviation, available to you at the time of your choosing. Once you have chosen your subject matter and signed up for your course, you will be asked for a few items including payment, course fees, a hard copy of a "Right to Fly" certificate and written consent for release of your information. You will need a current passport for travel to and from the course site, but you can travel between the flight school, airport and home before the course begins. A visa is not required for travel to or from any of these locations. 04aeff104c
